

W. W. Keyler, Pharmacy, No. 158 Elm St.—W. W. Keyler was born in Bloomfield, N. J., in 1867. He is a son of John G. Keyler, a prominent undertaker of that place. In the year 1882 he entered the drug store of J. P. Schereff, one of the leading drug stores of the State of New Jersey. After serving five years with Mr. Schereff he went with W. W. Maddock, of Broadway and 41st Street, New York City, and graduated from the N. Y. C. Ph. in 1887, and also passed the New Jersey Board of Pharmacy in that year. In 1888 he bought the Arlington Pharmacy, formerly owned by Emil Zahner. This store was one of the first business houses in Arlington, having been established in the year 1877. Mr. Keyler has not only been a successful pharmacist, but in 1889 he introduced the public telephone station in Arlington, and from time to time has had the service improved until at the present time in connection with the telephone he has a messenger system for delivering telephone calls to any part of the township, and in all he is spoken of by the Telephone Co. as one of the most successful station agents in the State. He has also held the office of President of the Retail Merchants' Association of Arlington and vicinity for several years. He is apothecary for the Court Laurel, No. 6927, A. O. F. of A., and was a charter member of American Council No. 1304, R. A., and held the office of collector for three years: he is an active member of the New Jersey Pharmacal Association, and of several other associations too numerous to mention. Mr. Keyler is the originator of the well known Grandmother's Compound Herb Tea, so beneficial in all stomach complaints, such as constipation, etc., which it is guaranteed to cure as it thoroughly cleanses the liver and thus prevents disease. It is valuable for kidney troubles, as it is composed of herbs used entirely for kidney complaints, and he carries a full line of pure drugs and druggists' sundries, and every physician will agree that the cure of disease would be much more easy than is now the case were the drugs and medicines sold by every dealer uniform in character. The public are apt to suspect that a physician who directs them to a certain pharmacy does so because he receives a percentage of the cost of the medicine sold, but this is so seldom the case as to be unworthy of consideration. The fact is, a physician learns that a certain pharmacist obtains his supplies from reliable sources, renews them often enough to prevent serious deterioration from age and is skillful and careful in the compounding of prescriptions. As these things enable the effects of prescriptions put up at his establishment to be more accurately prepared than would otherwise be possible, and as the professional reputation of the physician is directly dependent upon the prescription having the desired effect, what would be more natural than that he should direct where they should be compounded? Mr. Keyler is one of the most popular druggists in Arlington, not only among physicians but also the general public, for he has had long experience in the business and his methods are uniformly reliable.

George Bayliss, Jersey White Stone Quarry, Schuyler corner Bellville Avenue, P. O. Address, Arlington.—Mr. George Bayliss was born in Brooklyn, came with his parents to Arlington when but five years old and has lived there since, a space of thirty-eight years, and the greater part of that time has been active in working his quarry or copper mine, which is situated along the old historical century road, which derives its name from the fact that the British marched along this road over a hundred years ago on their way to Bellville where they made their camp. An idea can be gained to what extent his copper mine was worked for thirty years, when the company employed 180 men to work it, and only gave it up when they found it necessary to sink the shaft deeper, which would entail some extra expense. This is considered a piece of poor business management on their part, as no doubt the mine could then and can now be worked on a paying basis, as the surroundings indicate that valuable copper ore is present in large quantities. Mr. Bayliss is now confined to real estate and working his white stone quarry, and is prepared to supply masons and builders with this handsome and valuable stone in any quantity and at the shortest possible notice. In real estate he is in partnership with Mr. A. W. Schuler, the firm name being that of Bayliss & Schuler. Their property comprises 160 acres in North Arlington and is situated but ten minutes' walk from station. Handsome new cottages and houses with all modern improvements for the lowest possible prices and choice building plots in finest location on very easy instalments can be had here from $100 to $1,500. It will be well to give warning that this property located as it is, on the century road or Bellville Avenue, which runs from Bellville to Jersey City is certain to raise in value at no great time from hence, as already the electric cars are preparing to come from Rutherford, through it to Newark, and then a fine paying traffic will certainly induce the company to build a line from Bellville along Bellville Avenue and century road to Jersey City, thus enabling its residents to go to and come from New York at any minute in the day or night.

Thomas G. Yeo, Mason, Contractor, Forest Street, near Midland Avenue. P. O. Box 243.—The mason work above all other done in a house should be done well, for if not done well it will cause no end of discomfort and extra expense, we may say continual extra expense, as you will never succeed in repairing badly done mason work. The old saying, "Begin wrong, do wrong and you'll end wrong," must have been the thought of a mason, for with him a house is begun and ended. Mr. Yeo's many years' practical experience as a contractor and great success in his business is the best guarantee you can desire for having your mason work done to your satisfaction. Mr. Yeo has been in business eight years in Arlington, formerly having his office in the Freeman Building, when in 1892 he moved it to the present address. One of the most prominent architects in this country is reported to have said in a recent interview: "There's no such thing as 'passable' mason work; if mason work is not first class it is worthless or dangerous, and so in placing an order for work of that kind a sensible man pays more attention to the comparative reliability of the mason he consults than he does to the lowness of their bids." The standard of merit among our New England masons is high and "scamp" work or unreliable work is decidedly the exception and not the rule: but still it is well to be on the safe side, and therefore it is well to place your order with a well known and experienced mason who is in a position to guarantee satisfactory results, and whose guarantee is backed by years of faithful and varied service. Mr. Yeo was born and raised in Summerset, Mass., where his relatives and many friends are. He is a member of the Odd Fellows and Fraternal Legion of Arlington. Outside of the meetings which he attends in the above orders Mr. Yeo leads a quiet domestic life with his wife and daughter.
